

EXECUTIVE BIOS

Chris Allander – Vice President, Business Development

As Staffing Plus' first employee, Chris joined the company in 1997 as a Healthcare Recruiter. Chris currently serves as the Vice President, Business Development where he is responsible for managing all business development and sales activities of the Behavioral Health & Education Division and the Healthcare Division. His role includes client development and engagement, overseeing the sales force, and being a member of the Leadership team involved in strategic growth and operational effectiveness.

Earlier in his career with Staffing Plus, Chris held an Account Management role, where he was responsible for developing and executing strategies for lead generation, sales, pricing and revenue generation. He was then promoted to Vice President of Staffing Operations, where he was responsible for managing the operational activities of the Behavioral Health & Education Division, the Healthcare Division. While in these roles, Chris oversaw the entire Sales, Account Management, and Recruiting functions which included responsibility for managing staffing levels, full-cycle recruitment, sales and training processes, and the development and implementation of sales strategies and tactics for the entire organization.
